3/26 HAEGUE YANG, ARTIST

One of Korea's favorite expat artists, Hae-gue Yang, who was born in Seoul but who's been based both there and in Germany since the 90's, has acquired a stunning international reputation. The 45-year-old artist's work has been shown at the Venice Biennale, the Tate Modern in London, Documenta in Kassel, Germany and the New Museum in New York. She's become perhaps best known for her installations addressing her immigrant experience, and especially for her use of colorful Venetian blinds, which reference, of course, the permeability of boundaries. She would know.
