Busan Biennale

The 2014 Busan Biennale will bring together 160 artists from 30 countries, including top contemporary artists Kim Soo-ja and Anish Kapoor. More than 250 works will be exhibited together under the theme "Inhabiting the World" from Sept. 20 to Nov. 22 at the Busan Museum of Art, Busan Cultural Center and other venues throughout the city.

The theme will be explored through diverse artistic mediums, including sculptures, installations and video works. Along with the main exhibition, the biennale will feature special exhibitions, such as the Biennale Archive, that offer insights into the history and trends of Korean contemporary art. The Asian Curatorial exhibition, cocurated by young Asian curators, will offer an interesting take on life in port cities.

The biennale seeks to play a bridging role, connecting other Asian art events such as the Yokohama Triennale, Shanghai Biennale and Singapore Biennale. It will also feature the Asian Biennale Representatives Forum, aiming to take artistic cooperation to a new level; a special discussion between curators and citizens; and guided tours for citizens and young students.
